To make Milk-water, very useful in all sorts of Fevers and consumptions.

Take of cardus, two handfuls; of rue, goat's rue, angelica, wormwood, mint, and balm, of each one handful; put them all, being well bruised, into a cold still, with a gallon of milk, and draw off with a very gentle fire, lest it should run thick; you may draw off almost three quarts, drink a glass of it at any time, sweetened with sugar.
